DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 2, 4-12, 14-16 and 18-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 7,143,420 to Radhakrishnan in view of U.S. Patent Application Publication 2002/0078210 to Aschir.

Radhakrishnan '420 discloses:

As concerns claims 1, 15 and 22, providing Web services comprising: registering a Web service with a service provider (column 14, lines 45-50); installing the Web service within a service environment (column 14, lines 45-50); receiving a request for the Web service from a service user, wherein said request is received within an application environment, and wherein said application environment is disposed within a different network space than said service environment (column 13, line 35); accessing said requested Web service across a gateway (figure 10); and transporting service data for said Web service from a processor disposed in said application environment to the service user (column 12, lines 35-39).

As concerns claims 2 and 16, wherein said application environment is an open Internet environment (column 16, line 39), and wherein said service environment is at least one of a trusted network environment and a secure network environment (column 13, line 42).

As concerns claims 4 and 18, wherein said accessing further comprises: initiating a component within said gateway that is specific to said Web service (column 14, lines 45-50); and, initiating a component (figures 6, 9 and 10) within said gateway that is applicable to multiple Web services (column 14, lines 45-50).

As concerns claims 5 and 19, said accessing further comprises: conveying information between the gateway and the application environment using a Common Request Broker Architecture (column 12, line 2).

As concerns claims 6 and 20, further comprising: responsive to receiving the request for the Web service, executing at least one Java servlet (column 9, line 60-column 10, line 15) within said application environment that initiates said accessing step.

As concerns claims 7 and 21, wherein said Web service is registered with a service registry, and wherein said received request results from said service user selecting said Web service from said service registry (column 14, lines 45-50).

As concerns claim 8, a system for providing Web services comprising: a Web service installed within a service environment (column 14, lines 45-50); an application server (column 13, line 35) configured to distribute said Web service to said client application, wherein said application server is disposed within an application environment; and a gateway (figure 10) between said application server and said installed Web service.

As concerns claim 9, wherein said Web service is associated with a Web Service Definition Language definition (column 15, lines 2-5).

As concerns claim 10, wherein said application server further comprises an application engine (inherent for application server to have a processor) configured to execute modular server-side applications.

As concerns claim 11, wherein said application server further comprises a component engine configured to provide interface routines for the applications of said application engine (inherent for application server to have software).

As concerns claim 12, further comprising: a communication link (inherent in network) for exchanging Web service data between said gateway and said application server, wherein said communication link utilizes a Common Object Request Broker Architecture (column 12, line 2).

As concerns claim 14, wherein said gateway further comprises: a function specific component configured for a particular Web service (column 14, lines 45-50); and a service component configured for a plurality of Web services (column 14, lines 45-50).

Radhakrishnan '420 do not explicitly disclose wherein said gateway is a Parlay gateway.

Aschir '210 teach a Parlay gateway (0019).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to provide the system of Radhakrishnan '420 with a Parlay gateway, as taught by Aschir '210, in order to provide a means of being independent of the underlying network technology. Furthermore such a modification is merely a combination of known elements that would yield predictable results.

Conclusion
